ARCHETYPE: A character, symbol or idea whose traits are universally understood and copied. An archetype has similar meaning to stereotype (a personality observed multiple times) and an epitome (the "greatest" example of something)

Archetype includes personality, appearance, and similar character traits

Examples of archetypes:
→child   →hero   →wise old man →damsel in distress
→devil   →Frankenstein →warrior   →mentor/teacher

DOPPLEGANGER: The "double" of a living person. In literature, this usually means an evil "twin", although in non-literature it refers to anyone's look-a-like.

Examples of doppelganger:
→Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde   →Frankenstein and Monster
→Nina Sayers from "Black Swan"   →Elena Gilbert from "Vampire Diaries"
→"How I Met Your Mother"

Although the creature is not a true "twin" of Frankenstein, some argue that the creature's personality and actions represent the evil side of the doctor. Also, since Frankenstein created the creature, there's that connection, too.
