

CHARACTER is a person in a work of fiction. Characters are described by their character traits or characteristics, which are the things we know about that character.

The Characteristics of a Person -

In order for a story to seem real to the reader its characters must seem real. Characterization is the information the author gives the reader about the characters themselves. The author may reveal a character in several ways:

- a) his/her physical appearance
- b) what he/she says, thinks, feels and dreams
- c) what he/she does or does not do
- d) what others say about him/her and how others react to him/her

Characters are convincing if they are: consistent, motivated, and life-like (resemble real people)

Characters are...

1. Individual - round, many sided and complex personalities. In novels, we watch characters change, develop and grow as the plot moves
2. Developing - dynamic, many sided personalities that change, for better or worse, by the end of the story.
3. Static - Stereotype, have one or two characteristics that never change and are emphasized e.g. brilliant detective, drunk, scrooge, cruel stepmother, etc.

Characters are...

- motivated by the CONFLICTS within the novel. They are affected by and have to deal with the problems in the story
- moved along by the PLOT EVENTS within the novel.
